

SICK MAN

Is Cortelyou But Provoked Makes Statement

OF PROFOUND INTEREST

Indication That He May Yet Announce His Candidacy

Governor Hughes Gives Friends Permission to Use His Name Freely as Candidate.

Washington, Dec. 18.—Secretary Cortelyou issued a statement bearing on certain phases of the Republican presidential situation, which is certain to create a profound impression. It is seldom he permits himself to be drawn into a controversy of any kind, but he was provoked and injured by a number of stories that have appeared in print during the last week or two, and concluded to speak out in his own defense. His statement is one which, while straight to the point and emphatic in its denials of rumors and intimations, leaves a great deal to be inferred by those who understand political conditions. The Secretary's statement is as follows:

CORTELYOU'S STATEMENT.
"I do not know that I am called upon to make a statement at this time, but in view of the various rumors in circulation as to the alleged political activity of friends of mine in my interest, I will say that I have not been a candidate for anything but the confidence of the people in the discharge of my duties as secretary of the treasury.

"I have not in person sought, nor have the friends whose names have been mentioned in this connection, sought to influence political movements in my interest. I have not, nor have they, used any influence, directly or indirectly, to secure political support for or against any candidate for the presidency, and accusations that such has been done are unqualifiedly false.

"In no office, in not one of the three departments with which I have been connected, have I authorized or permitted officials or employees to attempt to influence any such movements, nor shall I do so. In common with many other citizens, I have decided views as to politics and to candidates, but I shall refrain from expressing them until I believe it is proper for me to do so. Upon this statement I am entirely content to leave the people to draw their own conclusions regarding such rumors as those to which I have referred.

"If in the future I shall decide to be a candidate for any office, I shall be prepared to say so frankly and state the grounds upon which I ask for support.

"In the meantime, I shall try, as I have tried in the past, to conduct the treasury department for the benefit of the people of the whole country and absolutely without regard to whether any action I may take in the line of my duty may adversely affect my personal or political welfare.

(Signed) "GEO. B. CORTELYOU."

GOVERNOR HUGHES DOES NOT OBJECT TO USE OF NAME

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 18.—Governor Hughes yesterday made public his correspondence with Senator Martin Saxe regarding possible action by the New York County Republican committee in endorsing the Governor for the Presidential nomination. Governor Hughes' letter follows:

"Albany, Dec. 16, 1907.
"My Dear Senator:—Your letter of the 15th has been received. I don't think it proper for me to make any suggestions as to what the County Committee should do or should not do. I stated my attitude in my speech before the Republican club, and by that I stand. It is of the highest importance that the work of the Administration shall be disinterested and I shall do nothing to influence the selection or vote of delegates. I assume that the party representatives will take such action, whatever it may be as they believe to be best. They have their duty and I have mine. I think my position is clearly understood.

"Very truly yours,
"CHARLES E. HUGHES."

The New York leaders who favor Governor Hughes as a Presidential candidate at once accepted this letter as indicating that the Governor was

CLEVELAND

MAY BE SENT TO DENVER AS DELEGATE-AT-LARGE FROM NEW JERSEY.

Many See in Movement a Possible Chance of Stamping the Convention, Nominating Him.

New York, Dec. 18.—A movement is on foot to send former President Grover Cleveland to the Denver convention as one of New Jersey's delegates at large. Behind the announcement is said to be an anti-Bryan plot. Wall street and eastern financial interests, are still opposed to Bryan's nomination. Cleveland's well known hostility to Bryan is figured to make him a leader of the anti-Bryan movement in the convention. Some of the backers of the scheme see in it a chance to stampede the convention for Cleveland, as the only Democrat who has led his party to victory since the civil war. If nominated, they say, Cleveland would be forced to accept.

JAPAN'S VIEW OF NAVAL MOVE

Tokio, Dec. 18.—That the transfer of 16 American battleships from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean is intended as a threat to Japan is treated as ridiculous in an editorial in the Jiji Shimes, one of the most influential newspapers in Tokio, but that the maneuver may encourage anti-Japanese demonstrations on the Pacific coast is feared. "This might bring about a repetition of the regrettable incident at San Francisco," comments the editorial. "We trust the United States will take the necessary precautions in this regard."

FLEET FOUND BY WIRELESS

Galveston, Tex., Dec. 18.—Operator Campbell, at the wireless telegraph station here, during the night, picked up the battleship sent in the latter's communication via the Savannah wireless station with Washington. He copied the following message sent by Admiral Evans from his flagship, the Connecticut, to the Navy department: "At 9 o'clock tonight the fleet is in north latitude 33 degrees 2 minutes; longitude 73 degrees 9 minutes west. All's well. Weather fair."

The Galveston operator gave the signal for this station and the reply came back quickly: "Clarkson of Dallas and Miller of Sherman send greetings to Texas."

The Clarkson and Miller referred to are Texans on board the fleet.

TEARS

Filled Welty's Eyes as He Closed His Argument for New Philadelphia Lawyer.

New Philadelphia, O., Dec. 18.—The libarment case against Henry Bowers is in the hands of Judge Shotwell who is expected to render a decision within a week. The court room was breathless during the arguments at the close of the trial. John C. Welty who is defending Bowers, broke into tears as he closed his plea.

FEW SPECTATORS IN COURT ROOM AT POWERS TRIAL

Georgetown, Ky., Dec. 18.—Only a few spectators were in the court room this morning when Commonwealth Attorney Franklin resumed the cross-examination of Caleb Powers charged with complicity in the murder of Governor Goebel. A large number of defense witnesses arrived this morning. The defendant holds his own remarkably well in the severe grueling to which he has been subjected.

Powers was confronted this morning with a couple of love letters written to his mountain sweetheart, Sadie Snuffer, at Willsbury, in which he mentions the part he took in getting up the mountain army.

TROOPS

Thrown About Palace to Guard the Shah of Persia

REVOLUTION IS FEARED

Russia and England to Attempt to Avoid Trouble

Germany Calmly Looking on But May Take a Hand if Any Fighting Takes Place.

Teheran, Persia, Dec. 18.—Russian and English diplomatic agents are in conference, the former with the Shah, the latter with leading members of the Persian parliament, and each with the other, in an effort to settle the differences which threaten an armed clash between the ruler and his people. The Shah is maintaining order in his capital at present only by constant military vigilance. Soldiers are patrolling all principal streets. Discontent is spreading throughout the country, and there is danger that the powers may be forced to all in putting down a widespread revolt.

So long as Russia and England confine their efforts to diplomacy, Germany is not disposed to interfere. In the event of fighting, however, the Kaiser would probably demand a hand in affairs to protect his country's interests. Parliament accuses the Shah of seeking to abrogate the constitution granted by his predecessor. The Shah replies that the country was not ripe for the measure of liberty extended to it, attributes existing disorders to the people's abuse of their privileges and admits that he contemplates restriction of their rights.

The Shah himself has concentrated the main body of his forces about the palace and more soldiers are constantly pouring into the city.

Supporters of the parliamentary party have thrown up barricades surrounding a tract four miles in circumference about the parliament building and fully 10,000 men are prepared to resist attempts to dissolve the assembly.

MERCHANT MURDERED.

Lorain, Dec. 18.—J. M. Domiski, a dry goods merchant, died today. He was shot by two men who entered his store apparently to rob. Domiski ran when the men entered and one of the merchant. Two youths are under arrest.

Now is the time to get in on the ground floor of the Smile club.

Gary, Ind., Dec. 18.—Mrs. Katherine Smith, weary and broken hearted in failing to find the man she loved, was found dying in Main street here with a bullet wound in her breast and a revolver clutched in her right hand. The woman gave up her home in Steubenville, Ohio, forsaking husband and children to find the man who had won her love. For days she searched the towns of Gary and Hammond. Yesterday she found the first trace, only to learn that her lover had left. "He wronged me, he wronged me," were the only words she spoke. The police believe she intended to first take the life of the man she sought, and then commit suicide.

PITTSBURG'S BIG DIVORCE RECORD

Pittsburg, Dec. 18.—Alfred A. Corey, father of William E. Corey, president of the Steel Trust, has not ceased to condemn his son for his conduct in divorcing his wife to marry an actress.

Dismissing the prospective divorce of another prominent Pittsburg, Mr. Corey said: "I have just been looking up the divorce business in this money-crazed Pittsburg, and I find that there have been more divorces applied for in one day in Allegheny county, or by Allegheny people, than were applied for by the entire population of Canada in 30 years."

STEEL EMPLOYEES GET $10,000,000 FOR CHRISTMAS

New York, Dec. 18.—Employees of the United States Steel Corporation will receive some handsome Christmas presents this year. They will come from the profit-sharing plan of the corporation, under which $10,000,000 will be distributed between now and January 1, 1908.

The payment represents dividends to holders of the seven per cent preferred stock, a bonus of $5 a share each year on every share of stock and extra dividends incident to operations of the plan. Since the plan became operative approximately 47,000 employees have participated in the profit. More than 10,000 employees have held stock from the beginning of the plan.

Employees have received at the rate of $12 a share each year on their stock, which included the regular dividend and bonus, and original subscribers will receive a large dividend in January from a fund accumulated through the operations of the plan.

Yeakum was the girl's sweetheart and was strongly opposed by the girl's mother. After the mother's death, the young couple were to have run away and been married.

MINERS

Likely to Strike if Asked to Make Any Concessions

WILL ASK FOR INCREASE

At Tomorrow's Meeting at Indianapolis and Insist Upon It

Chances are Ninety Per Cent in Favor of Gigantic Labor Struggle Tying Up the Country.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 18.—At the meeting here tomorrow, the operators and miners in the central competitive district, comprising Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Kentucky, Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia, will decide whether to restore the interstate conference between the operators and miners to agree upon a wage scale and working conditions. Two years ago the conference agreement was ended and the miners and operators not being able to get together, President Mitchell authorized agreements by states, and this was adopted. Vice President Lewis favored a strike. State agreements were made for two years. Now these expire, and the question of restoring a general agreement arises. The miners are strongly in favor of restoring the arrangement.

If an agreement is not reached, the chances are 90 per cent toward the possibility of a strike after April 1. At that time both the bituminous and the anthracite contracts expire, and the miners' organization is in a position to tie up the industry of the country. For the last two contracts he miners have accepted reductions, and made concessions. Now the miners want an increase in wages.

ATTORNEY WINN TESTIFIES IN HOLDEN TRIAL

Zanesville Physician's Former Attorney Gives Damaging Evidence in Forgery Trial.

Zanesville, Dec. 18.—The state rested its case in the Holden forgery trial at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon after Attorney Simeon M. Winn, who proved to be its star witness, had left the stand. The defense began by submitting the depositions of Mrs. Bonnie Stewart-Leeds of New York City and Miss Ada Kinkadee of Chicago to the jury, after which court was adjourned for the day.

The testimony of Simeon Winn proved to be very damaging to the defendant's case and was admitted only after a lengthy wrangle between counsel for both sides. Mr. Winn was formerly Holden's attorney and the witness testified that the accused had told him that he intended drawing up a note for $2,500 and signing his brother, J. W. Holden's name to it. This is the alleged crime with which the defendant is charged with at the present trial.

Simeon Winn was called and immediately counsel for the defense made a strenuous kick against the admission of his testimony. The grounds for the objection were that Mr. Winn having formerly been Holden's attorney, his testimony would necessarily be in the nature of professional secrets, which he had no right to reveal.

The court dismissed the jury and gave the attorneys an opportunity to argue the matter. The attorneys for the state put up the claim that the evidence was entirely competent, and the court finally held with them, and Mr. Winn was allowed to take the witness stand.

CAMP OF U. S. TROOPS AT GOLDFIELD

How Ben Hathaway Met the Financial Crisis.

(Original)

Steven Hathaway, head of the firm of Hathaway & Co., importers, desired that his son, aged seventeen, should succeed him in his business. Wishful, however, that he should be properly educated, he sent the boy to college. Before he left the father said to him:

"Ben, since you are to take my place in the business, I wish you to choose elective studies that will be of benefit to you in mercantile pursuits, such as political economy and kindred subjects. Since your life will be devoted to peaceful work I trust you will not spend much time on athletics. You will have no opportunity in business to display your muscle."

Ben went to college; but, having more taste for games than books, he graduated at the foot of his class in studies and at the head in athletics. He was celebrated in his time as right tackle in the football games and on several occasions turned an ignominious defeat into a brilliant victory. When he went home his father was by no means pleased with his son's record, but made the most of what he considered a failure and turned the boy into his counting room.

It was not long after this that the financial panic of 1907 came on, and every one was scrambling for ready cash to meet his obligations. Steven Hathaway exerted every means to keep the firm on its feet, but it was a long pull and a hard pull, and before the finish the old man was well nigh exhausted.

One day Ethan Bull of the firm of Lyon & Bull came into the office of Hathaway & Co. and demanded payment of $10,000 due his firm. When Mr. Hathaway senior begged for time, Bull stormed and blustered, threatening to put the firm into bankruptcy if the money was not paid within twenty-four hours. He left, saying that he would call the next day before bank closing and that if he did not receive a check for the whole amount he would execute his threat.

That night the head of the house of Hathaway & Co. went home physically and mentally in collapse. Ben went with him, put him to bed, sent for a doctor, and when he came asked him to forbid the invalid to go back to his office for several weeks at least. The doctor complied, and Ben breathed easier.

The next morning Ben walked into the office and announced that he would fill his father's place as manager. This did not lessen the dread with which the office force looked upon the situation, for the young man had never managed any business, certainly not in such trying times. It happened to be the worst day of the money squeeze. One hundred and fifty per cent was bid for money, and none to be had.

About 2 o'clock, when securities on the stock market were crumbling and ruin stared everybody but tramps and beggars in the face, Mr. Bull walked into the counting room.

He stood six feet one, weighed 200 pounds and had a neck like his name-sake. Ben knew well enough that his object had been and was to frighten his father into straining every nerve to raise the means with which to pay his account. The expression of the creditor's face was like that on Japanese images of their god of war.

"Where's Mr. Hathaway?" he asked in stentorian tones.

"I'm Mr. Hathaway," said Ben, rising from his father's desk and advancing with a pleasant smile. "I suppose you have called, Mr. Bull, for your account. I regret that owing to the locking up—"

"I want my money," roared Bull. "and if I don't get it I'll pull this house down on your heads."

Before the last word was out Ben had tackled him, and in an instant he was on the floor.

"One down!" said Ben.

Bull got up and, with red-hot blood in his eyes, went for his assailant. In another moment he had resumed his place on the floor. This time his fall was aggravated by Ben's falling with all his weight on top of him.

"Two downs!" cried Hathaway junior, disengaging himself and jumping up.

Mr. Bull took more time than before to get up, but when on his feet made a drive at Ben with his right which, had Ben been there, would have hurt him. Without waiting for a second drive Ben gave his enemy his fist and landed him again on the floor. Then, jumping on him, he held him down.

"Three downs!" he said.

His enemy made a few feeble attempts to rise, then lay still.

"See here, Mr. Bull," said Ben, "if you'll promise to leave this office peacefully I'll let you up."

"Yes, I'll leave this office," panted the prostrate man, "and I'll go straight to my lawyers, and this firm will have a receiver right off."

"In that case you may get your money in a few months or a few years, but there will be another account you'll have to settle with me as soon as the papers are served. I'll give you a thrashing compared with which this will be a passing zephyr. Get up!"

Ben jumped off him nimbly. Bull arose with difficulty and, instead of going for his enemy again, stood glaring for a moment at the office force looking on, then turned and went out, slamming the door behind him.

Whether Mr. Bull disliked the prospect of another settlement or concluded he had better wait for his money we do not know, but he did not press his claim.

In another week Mr. Hathaway senior returned to his office and resumed his place. He was from that time forward a strong advocate of athletics.

NEWARK BOWLERS BEAT JOHNSTOWN

The All Star Newark team defeated the Johnstown Stars on the Hayes alleys by a large margin of 282 pins. The games were played very nicely and the boys enjoyed themselves during the entire game. Mr. Lain was star bowler of the evening, having the highest score and also high average. He was in very fine form for the contest. Dickerson followed him closely with a high score of 204 and an average of three pins behind McLain. F. Bausch was third in the average and Shai and Hayes rolled very good throughout the game. The Johnstown team was a little bit off in the first game, but fought hard for the last two, but the Newark boys were a little better and just kept shooting for all that was in them and won out. A return game will be played at Johnstown in a couple of weeks the date not yet having been set. The scores:

Roosevelt has sent his fleet of battleships—the great American armada—off on its cruise to the Pacific. Its destination is more uncertain than that of that other great armada in history, and it is to be hoped that its fate will not be so disastrous as that of the Spaniards in 1588. But what is the purpose of the Roosevelt armada other than a spectacular show at an immense cost to the nation?

The city elections in Massachusetts resulted in two Democratic gains. Quincy, which has been in the hands of the Republicans for the past ten years, elected as mayor William E. Shea, and Northampton elected Jas. W. O'Brien.

President Roosevelt has evidently discovered that prosperity is not in the sole charge of the Republican party, and that boasting of prosperity does not prove we have it. For he says in his message, "Optimism is a good characteristic, but if carried to an excess, it becomes foolishness."

Trade is not booming as it did before the panic. This can be seen with half an eye. It would be folly to deny it. On the other hand, it would be quite as foolish to insist that the setback has stopped the wheels. There is no longer a roaring, heedless, onward rush; but there is a steady volume of wholesale and retail transactions that will compare favorably with the business of soberer years when the tide of prosperity was not in so large part made up of speculative foam. There has been a slowdown; but no stoppage. The business of the country is righting itself as fast as could be expected and facing the new situation with courage and confidence. But it is proper to remark in this connection as a reminder that it was not a Democratic panic.

We Are Suffering From "Scathing Indictments."

By WOODROW WILSON, President of Princeton University.
"SCATHING indictments" of our present industrial and political conditions are exactly what we are suffering from at the present moment, and they are to be offset not by other "scathing indictments," but by a very CALM AND SELF POSSESSED EXAMINATION OF THE ACTUAL CONDITION OF THINGS. What we need at present is NOT HEAT, BUT LIGHT. A just view of the existing situation would not, of course, excuse any of the GROSS EVILS which have sprung up in our business management or rather in our manipulations of industrial enterprise.

IT WOULD, ON THE CONTRARY, SEEK TO DISCOVER JUST WHAT THOSE EVILS ARE AND JUST WHAT THE BEST REMEDY FOR THEM IS. AT THE MOMENT WE ARE SUFFERING QUITE AS MUCH FROM THE BLUNDERING AND UNINTELLIGENT METHODS BY WHICH OUR GOVERNMENTS, STATE AND FEDERAL, AND PUBLIC OPINION THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY HAVE BEEN ATTEMPTING TO REMEDY THESE EVILS AS FROM THE EVILS THEMSELVES.

Indiscriminate abuse is clearly NO REMEDY and does not create the state of mind in which a remedy is possible. We need above all things else at present MODERATION IN COUNSEL AND A CAREFUL DISCRIMINATION OF THE GOOD FROM THE EVIL. The vast bulk of our business is SOUND. The vast majority of our business men are upright and honest.

It would be deeply unjust to say that our great corporations are "predatory" in their intentions or in their methods. No doubt there are individuals who SCRUPLE AT NOTHING in the accumulation of wealth and who use the wealth they have accumulated without regard to the laws either of public justice or of private morals. But these men IMPAIR the business of the country more than they assist it, and it is in the interest of all concerned that they should be singled out and separated from those who are carrying forward the LEGITIMATE undertakings of the country.

BIG VERDICT IS SECURED IN U. S. COURT

FOR DAMAGES AGAINST THE B. & O. COMPANY FOR PERSONAL INJURIES.

Newark Attorney, Represent Plaintiff in Case—Other News of the Court House.

In the case of Aaron K. Hybarger against the Leonard Martin Construction company, tried in the Circuit Court of the United States, the plaintiff recovered a judgment of $10,000. The case grew out of an accident to the plaintiff while working for the defendant on the new B. & O. railroad round house, in this city. The plaintiff is a carpenter, and was directed to go into a ditch for the purpose of making some forms for concrete, and while there the ditch caved in and injured him so that the hip and knee of one leg was rendered stiff and he was permanently incapacitated for work. Jones & Jones, and Russell & Horner, attorneys for plaintiff.

Westbrook vs. Westbrook.
Burkley Westbrook has commenced suit in the Probate court against Rebecca Westbrook for divorce. The parties were married December 24, 1903, and no children were born of the marriage. He also asks for a decree on the grounds of three years' wilful absence. Smythe & Smythe, attorneys for the plaintiff.

Answer in Divorce Case.
In the case of Margaret C. McConnell against William G. McConnell, suit for divorce, and alimony, the defendant has filed answer and cross petition. He asks for the custody of the child for the reason, as he states, that his wife is unable to properly raise the child. He also charges gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty on the part of the plaintiff. J. V. Hilliard, attorney.

Ditch Case.
In the matter of the county ditch petitioned for by Nathan House, near Hebron, T. S. Geiger, has filed a petition for the establishment of a lateral ditch, being a continuation of the ditch petitioned for by Mr. House. The county auditor has filed a copy of the petition with the county commissioner and will set a day for the hearing later.

FRED. GALLANT IS VERY ILL

FORMER NEWARK NEWSPAPER MAN LIVING VERY LOW WITH TYPHOID FEVER.

Friends in Newark Asked to Locate Relatives, and This is Done and They Go to Him.

The news was received here Tuesday evening by the Elias' lodge of this city, that Mr. Fred. W. Gallant, who is a member of the local lodge, is seriously ill with typhoid fever in New Castle, Pa.

It will be recalled by those that had the pleasure of the acquaintance of Mr. Gallant that when he was the city editor of the American Tribune under the ownership of Mr. A. C. Dickinson, and that when Mr. Dickinson sold his interests in the paper, Mr. Gallant followed him to the newfield.

The second telegram about his condition that was received at a late hour Tuesday was very alarming, and parties here that knew the addresses of his immediate relatives were kept busy informing them by wire of his serious condition, but this morning the good news came that Mr. Gallant has passed a very comfortable night and that there was now hope of his ultimate recovery.

AERIAL BALLOON STATION.

Ideal Landing Place to Be Built on Roof of New York Hippodrome.

An aerial station for balloons, the first ever established in New York, is to be built upon the roof of the New York Hippodrome, and Messrs. Shubert & Anderson of that playhouse announce that they will give $1,000 to the first balloonist who will successfully navigate an airship or a dirigible balloon and land upon the roof of the Hippodrome. Plans for the aerial station are now being drawn by Arthur Voegtlin of the Hippodrome, and work will be commenced in a few days under the direction of John Corrigan, the master carpenter of the big house. The plans as outlined by Mr. Voegtlin utilize the enormous open flat roof of the Hippodrome as an ideal place for the landing of balloons. The enormous flagpoles that now encircle the building will be removed, as they might prove obstructions to the approach of the balloons.

In the center of the roof a flat platform will be arranged, which will have six enormous rings attached to posts. These rings will be intended as anchorages and will be so arranged that an anchor thrown from a balloon can be instantly made fast and permit a gradual descent of the airship. Another feature of the aerial station will be a tank where a supply of gasoline will always be on hand to provide fuel for the motors of dirigible balloons. A connection will also be made with the pipes of the Consolidated Gas company, so that any balloon landing on the roof of the Hippodrome can get plenty of gas with which to continue its flight.

PURE WATER FOR SOLDIERS.

Army Wagon Which Insures Sterilized Supply For Men in the Field.

Uncle Sam has adopted a water wagon for army use which even when it draws its contents from a much polluted stream provides his soldiers with a fine fluid with which to quench their thirst, says a Washington correspondent of the Chicago Tribune. The secret of this is that the wagon in question is nothing more or less than a complete filtering and sterilizing plant on wheels. This sterilizing plant is equipped with a boiler for making steam to operate the pump and the sterilizer, a complete set of boneblack filters and a reservoir for storing the sterile water. Along each side are seven faucets, so arranged that fourteen men can conveniently fill their canteens at one time. Only a few minutes are required for an entire regiment to obtain its water supply.

From four to six miles are required to draw this wagon. Its steam pump will suck water from any stream or well, and, no matter how muddy or full of disease germs it may be, it will automatically pass through the system and not only issue perfectly clear and pleasing to the eye, but absolutely safe as well. Through a most ingenious arrangement it is discharged at most as cold as when it entered.

ELECTRICITY FOR SAVAGES.

Novel Method Adopted by Japanese to Kill Formosan Head Hunters.

The extermination of savage, murderous head hunters by electricity is the latest novelty introduced by the Japanese in Formosa, according to Walter Clifton, manager of a Formosan mercantile company, who arrived at San Francisco recently on the Japanese liner America Maru, says the New York Tribune.

"These head hunters," said Clifton, "number about 100,000 and infest the entire eastern coast of the island. All efforts to civilize them have failed. They recently inveigled a party of 300 Chinese and Japanese into an ambush on the pretense of showing some treasure and killed all but three."

"Large bodies of troops were sent out, and now when a company of head hunters is located the place is surrounded by a wire fence. The wires are charged with electricity. The soldiers begin to shoot, the savages stampede, and then the deadly wires get those that the bullets miss."

Pork Barrel Many Years Old.

A pork barrel in use for 225 years was recently discovered in Torrington, Conn., says the New York Sun. The relic that has been the burial place of succeeding generations of Connecticut hogs belongs to Uri Whiting, to whom it was presented lately by Lucian Burr, who removed from Torrington to Stratford within the last few weeks. It had been a part of the Burr family furniture for over eighty years. According to the record that goes with the barrel, Zebulon Curtis took it into Torrington when he removed from Kensington in 1743. At that time it was recorded as being 100 years old. Since then it has been in constant use and has been handed down through the family by succeeding generations. The barrel is not only well preserved, but is said to have acquired a delicious flavor.

Parakeet For the Christmas Tree.

This year the parakeet will make its appearance in the boughs of the Christmas tree to be distributed as a present, says the New York Press. There is a great fancy being shown just now for this little bird, which can talk and has not only the intelligence of the big polly, but shows strong affection for its owner. This bird is an improvement over the swearing parrot which has figured, along with the rubber plant, as part of the household equipment in many homes. One bird dealer says that the parakeet is a remarkably intelligent bird and sure to make friends wherever it goes.

AUTOING IN FAR NORTH

Traveler's Advice on the New York to Paris Contest.

COMFORT FOR THE DRIVERS.

Reindeer Clothing Suggested by Samuel D. Williams as Very Warm, Light and Practical for the Arctic.

"I have been reading the proposed automobile race from New York to Paris overland under the auspices of the New York Times and Paris Matin with more than an ordinary amount of interest, for I have been in that arctic country quite a good deal and know something of the hardships that will have to be encountered," said Samuel D. Williams of Portland, Ore., to a representative of the New York Times at the Waldorf-Astoria the other day.

"Such a trip appears to me to be perfectly feasible, although it will entail many hardships and necessarily much suffering unless great care is taken by those sent on the expedition. Much has been said about the construction of the machines, the gasoline and lubricating oils that will not freeze and such other things of a mechanical nature, and the comfort of the drivers themselves appears to have been entirely overlooked. This is a question that should be taken up before the machines are started on their long journey, and in order that the drivers may have the benefit of the experience of others who have spent many months in the arctic regions a few suggestions might prove beneficial.

"In the first place, it has been found that in order to get the best out of the situation and be as comfortable as possible under the conditions it is best to conform as far as possible with the customs of those who have already solved the problem of living in the arctic regions. In this connection it seems that the value of reindeer skin clothing has not always been known or as fully appreciated as it should be in arctic explorations.

"The Eskimo of arctic Alaska and northeast Siberia use hardly anything else, and nothing is so warm and light as their dress. There are slight local differences in the makeup of their dress, but in general the men's winter clothing consists of a single pair of close fitting trousers, with the hair next to the skin for cold and the reverse for ordinary weather; a pair of deerskin socks, with the hair next to the feet; a pair of boots with the hair out, with heavy sealskin soles for hard wear or deerskin soles for light wear; two arctics, or shirts, one with the hair next to the body and the other with the hair out and both with close fitting hoods fringed with wolfskin to break the wind from the face and nose, and a pair of mittens.

"These are all made of the summer skins of the reindeer, and the whole outfit will not weigh more than ten or twelve pounds. Over the skin shirt is worn a snow shirt made of drilling, and sometimes a pair of drill trousers is worn over the skin trousers to keep the snow from driving into the hair.

"A belt is worn around the waist outside the shirt to keep the cold air out, or, rather, to keep the warm air in. This is loosened when the person gets too warm. With this outfit well sewed and everything tight one can defy almost any degree of cold.

"The weight of one's clothing is very telling in the days and weeks of traveling through the snow and over the rough ice, and the lightness of the deerskin is one of its most important features. The skins are beautifully tanned and are soft and pliable. The heavy winter skins are seldom used for clothes, but make excellent sleeping gear, either as mats or blankets or made up as sleeping bags. Here also their lightness and warmth are their chief recommendations."

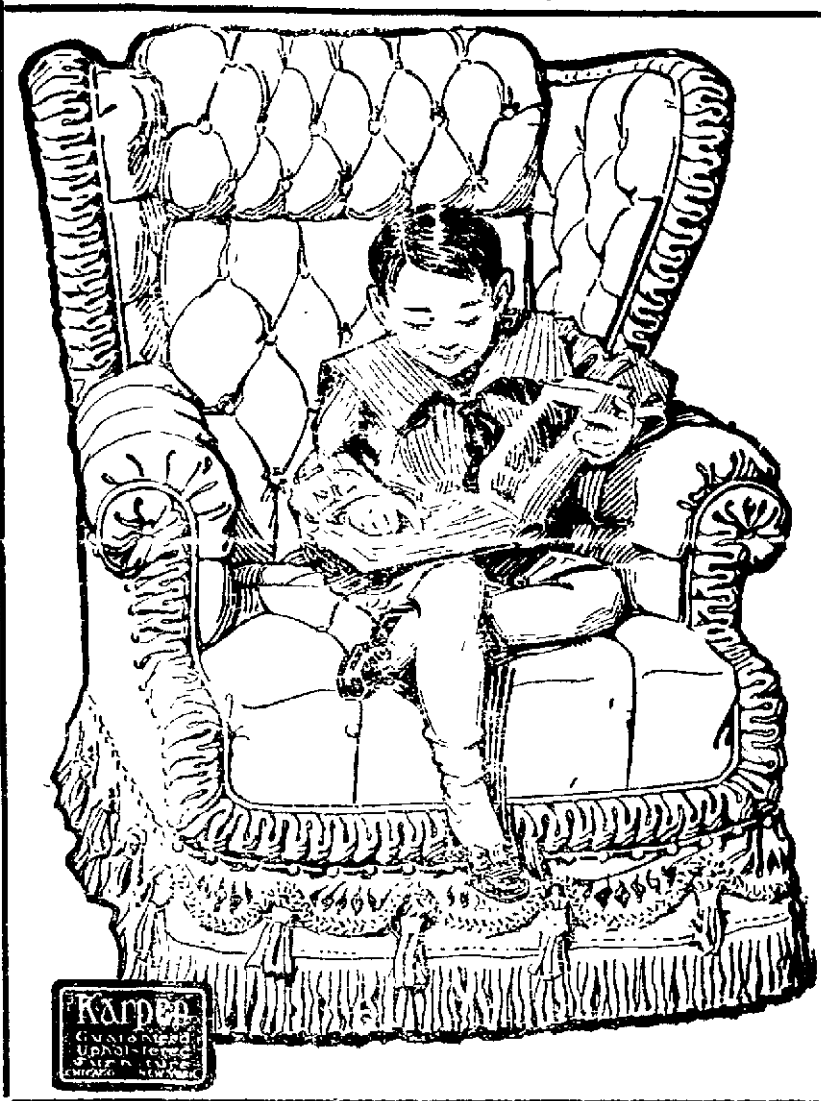

Another thing concerning the comfort and safety of the drivers was referred to by Mr. Williams in the necessity for taking care not to freeze exposed parts.

"The difference between care and lack of care in arctic travel is slight," he said, "and the first step is sure to bring its reminder in the shape of a frosted toe or finger or a frozen nose. One must be on guard, and the slightest twinge in the nose or cheek must be heeded and circulation started again by vigorous rubbing."

"No part of the body requires more attention than the hands and the feet. Socks and boots must be well made and kept thoroughly dry. Even the slightest perspiration will, if one stops too long, work disastrously. Both boots and socks should be changed immediately upon arriving at camp, and dry ones should be put on in the morning before starting out."

"The natives know the importance of this only too well, and if they see one inclined to neglect these precautions they will insist on his taking his foot-gear off. It is the easiest thing in the world for a man to suffer severely in such a climate, but it is possible by good care and attention to avoid what one might call extreme suffering and go through the country with only the unavoidable discomforts, which a man soon learns to become accustomed to."

"While speaking of the arctic country let me say just one thing more. The hospitality of the people—the natives, I mean—is not excelled anywhere. It is never grudging. It is thrust upon you. The best they have and the best place in the house are at the disposal of the traveler. Often it is embarrassing for the natives are so insistent and generous that it is hard to refuse their offers."

POULTRY SHOW

WILL UNDOUBTEDLY BE THE BEST EVER GIVEN BY THE FANCLERS' ASSN.

Interurban Express Cars Will Stop in Front of Armory to Avoid the Transfer of Stock.

The big poultry show to be held in this city, in the Armory Hall on East Main street, December 31, 1907, to January 1, 1908, will in all probability be the largest ever held in the state of Ohio, outside of Cincinnati and Cleveland.

Applications for entry blanks have come from nearly every county in the state, and many from Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Indiana and Michigan. Eric, Pa., will likely send 30 birds, while at least 100 more will come from out of state, something which has never occurred in the history of the Newark Poultry Show.

The secretary has, at the request of foreign exhibitors, mailed more than 200 catalogues and entry blanks as compared with 100 last year, and pure bred birds of every breed and variety will be on exhibit, with a fine display of pet stock.

The management of the interurban lines has kindly consented to stop express cars at the Armory on Monday and Tuesday, December 30 and 31, so that all stock coming by interurban lines will not have to be transferred, but unloaded direct at the Armory. The express companies will be taxed to their fullest capacity.

The Poultry Association offers a fine line of silver cups and ribbons which may be seen in the window of The Newark Trust company, and also $2 in cash on first prize pens, and $1 on all single entries; $1 in cash on second prize pens, and 50 cents cash on second prize single entries.

Last year 300 entries were made and 2000 people visited the exhibit. This year not less than 1000 birds will be shown, and 4000 persons will be present. Every step will be taken looking towards the accommodation of the public.

The exhibit will open to the public Tuesday morning, and will continue open every day and evening during the week, and the small admission fee of 10 cents will be charged to defray expenses.

It is expected that the show will bring many visitors to the city from surrounding towns and cities, as it is the first big poultry show in Central Ohio this winter.

The Armory will be well lighted and heated and kept in the very best sanitary condition.

CHRISTMAS DAY MAN AND WIFE

Columbus, Ohio, December 18.—

Christmas Day will be at 1355 East Mound street every day after January 1. This does not signify that Santa Claus is going to visit that number every day, nor that the holiday will be celebrated more often than usual. It only means that Mr. and Mrs. Christmas Day will make their home there.

Mr. and Mrs. Christmas Day are a newly married couple. The name of the bride was Miss Della Bishop. Her parents live at 335 South Ohio avenue. They were solemnly married December 2 at the residence of the officiating clergyman, Rev. George A. Brewer, 566 Linwood avenue, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. The marriage was announced yesterday.

Mr. Day received the name from the fact that he was born on the great holiday. He formerly lived in Kirkersville. He is employed in the office of the Ralston Steel Car company. Yesterday Mr. Day said he did not wish any Christmas presents this year, for, he said, he had been made very happy by securing Mrs. Christmas Day.

JURY BANQUET AT THE SEILER

If the petit jurors don't have a fine time at the banquet that will be given at Hotel Seiler Friday night, it won't be the fault of "Mine Host" A. H. Seiler, who is making elaborate preparations for their entertainment. Mr. Seiler has a reputation to sustain and he is more than outdoing himself for this occasion.

The menu which will be served is a decided novelty and is one that will be long kept by the jurors themselves and the judges who will be present. The menu is a combination of food and legal terms but the men the men that will be present have been able to "get on the outside of one and it's a pretty safe bet to say

WEDDINGS.

HICKMAN-SMITH.

One of the prettiest of recent weddings was solemnized at the beautiful home of the bride, 438 South Second street, Tuesday evening of this week at 5 o'clock, when Miss Marguerite Smith was united in marriage to Mr. Fred R. Hickman of 137 West Locust street. The color scheme of decorations was green and white. "O. Promise Me," was sung by Mrs. W. H. Hickman, mother of the groom with piano accompaniment by Miss Louise Black of Woods avenue, followed by Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by the mother of the bride, during the rendition of which the contracting parties entered, taking their position under a floral bell suspended in the archway dividing the spacious double parlors. The impressive marriage ceremony uniting the pair for life was solemnized in the presence of about 50 invited guests of Elder W. L. Fleener of the Primitive Baptist church.

The bride was beautifully gowned in an elaborate costume of white satin and princess lace. After the ceremony the guests retired to the beautifully decorated dining room, where an elaborate supper was served in courses. In the bride's cake were found a ring, thimble and silver coin. Elder Fleener found the ring, Miss Louise Black found the thimble, and young Mr. Neis the coin.

The bride and groom went east on a trip, and will be at home soon to their friends at 137 West Locust street, this city.

WHAT THE KIDNEYS DO.

Their Unceasing Work Keeps Us Strong and Healthy.

All the blood in the body passes through the kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys filter the blood. They work night and day. When healthy they remove about 500 grains of impure matter daily, when unhealthy some part of this impure matter is left in the blood. This brings on many diseases and symptoms—pain in the back, headache, nervousness, hot, dry skin, rheumatism, gout, gravel, disorders of the eyesight, and hearing, dizziness, irregular heart, debility, drowsiness, dropsy, deposits in the urine, etc. But if you keep the filters right you will have no trouble with your kidneys.

G. W. Harter, living at Hebron, O., says: "For several years I suffered from disordered kidneys but was unable to obtain the slightest relief from the numerous remedies I used. I finally heard of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured a box at Crayton's drug store and received prompt relief. I am glad to endorse such an efficient kidney remedy."

THE GANGES.

Ancient Legends of the Sacred River of the Hindoos.

From an icy cavern at the foot of a Himalayan snow bed more than 10,000 feet above the level of the sea issues a small stream which becomes the mighty Ganges, flowing for 1,500 miles through India to the bay of Bengal, and of whose course every foot is holy ground.

With Mother Ganga, as the pious Hindoos reverently call her, no river on earth can compare in sanctity.

The old poem tells us that the heavenly Ganges flowed from the toe of Vishnu and was brought down from heaven by the prayers of the saint Bhagiratha to purify the ashes of the 60,000 sons of King Sagara, who had been burnt by the angry glances of the sage Kapila.

Ganga was angry at being brought down from heaven, and to save the earth from her impetuous rush Shiva caught the river on his brow and with his matted locks checked its course. The legends go on to tell how the descent of the Ganges disturbed the sage Jahnu in the performance of his religious duties, whereupon in his rage he drank up the river, but subsequently relented and permitted it to flow from his ear.—Pearson's Weekly.

NEIGHBORS TRADE AT HOME.

Some Remarks on "Industrial Neighborliness" Suggested by an Utterance of William Allen White—How to Be a Native Foreigner.

One of the best known writers in the United States is William Allen White, and one of the most remarkable things about Mr. White is his loyalty to his own town. That town is Emporia, Kan. Mr. White got his start in Emporia, and Emporia is good enough for him. He steadfastly refuses to desert his home town and go to a large city. It is said that eastern magazine editors have offered him large salaries to go to New York and work for them, while newspaper editorial positions at enormous pay are said to be open to Mr. White in almost any big city. The young Kansan—he is now about forty—says "Get thee behind me, Satan," to all these temptations. He runs a paper in Emporia which he owns, and he would rather stay there and edit the Gazette than to be editor of the biggest metropolitan daily.

Mr. White has a theory that it is best for a human being to live in a small town, a city of a few thousand inhabitants. Of course he does not advocate life in a community where there are no modern conveniences. Every such community is striving, or ought to be striving, to grow up to such dimensions that it may enjoy all modern improvements. Emporia has grown up that far, and it suits Bill White. Every little while Mr. White prints in the Gazette something that seems to be handed out straight from the shoulder. Frequently it is a suggestion for town improvement or looking toward a plan for enabling the town to hold its own. Here is a recent utterance from his pen which is applicable to any town in America:

"The man who buys his goods of a mail order house and expects his neighbors in Emporia to buy goods of him or buy labor of him or to buy professional service of him is economically a leech. He is sucking industrial blood out of the town and gives none back. He sends his profits out of town like a Chinaman and has no more right to a standing in the community than a foreigner. We are all neighbors industrially in this town, and the man who sends away for his goods is not one of us. He is of another industrial system and deserves no man's support in Emporia."

Mr. White's allusion to the Chinaman is a happy one. It is recalled that one of the chief objections to the Chinaman's residence in this country when exclusion was being discussed was the fact that the pigtailed person spent very little money in the United States, but sent his earnings to China or took them back there with him when he finally returned to his native land. He came here not to be a citizen, but to make money off the Americans and carry the money away.

Citizens of towns like Emporia and of thousands of places either larger or smaller who do a considerable part of their retail buying by mail, sending their money to the big cities which have no interest in the smaller cities except to get their money and keep it, are unwittingly making Chinamen of themselves, practically speaking. Like Chinamen, they make their living in the community, getting their money from the other people, and, like Chinamen, they ship the money out instead of spending it at home so that it may get back into local trade.

"We are all neighbors industrially in this town," says Mr. White. That is as true as anything can be. There is such a thing as being a neighbor industrially as well as socially. It is all very well to greet your neighbors with a cheery "Good morning," but in the long run it is more neighborly to buy a bolt of calico from Neighbor Jones, a cured ham from Neighbor Johnson, and a patent lamp from Neighbor Jenkins. These little attentions will make Neighbors Jones, Johnson and Jenkins feel much more neighborly, and they in turn will be more inclined to "neighbor" with you when you have anything to sell, be it professional services, town lots, hogs or hominy.

The interdependence of all the people in a community is what Mr. White intended to point out when he spoke of being neighbors industrially. If you send away for your goods you are "not one of us." Instead, you're a Chinaman. Most Chinamen in America send away to China to buy their food—the nuts and last year's birds' nests and other dainties fancied by the orientals. There is some excuse for the Chinaman buying these things in China, because he has become accustomed to them as articles of diet and they are not to be bought in the United States. But Americans eat and wear things grown and manufactured in America. These things are on sale at the local stores. When you send away for such things, though your money does not get outside the United States, you are sending to a foreign country so far as your own community is concerned, for the money won't come back.

William Allen White, who elects to live in a small city because he believes that human happiness is best conserved in small cities, strikes the keynote of the present crusade for home trade when he declares that a man who buys his goods away from home "is sucking industrial blood out of the town and gives none back." That is what it amounts to. Unless checked, the result must be industrial anemia.

MAKING VISITS.

The Guest Has Quite as Many Shortcomings as the Hostess.

As one reads a great deal about how to receive or to entertain guests, but very little on how the guest should behave, the supposition is that she knows just the correct thing and always does it.

I disagree. I have had guests who had never been taught that one should not remain the extreme limit of the time for which they were invited. I have had guests who were always late to meals.

One woman who stayed at my house a week borrowed everything I had, including my only pair of scissors, which she lost on a rainy day when I wanted to sew myself.

I have been followed around from room to room while I was performing household duties by a restless friend who had not sense enough to take a book and sit down and read.

I have been told how to run my own house by a guest who was a "good manager."

I have had my small spare room filled with two trunks and a hat box for a week's visit.

One kind friend brought her dog (uninvited!)

Another gave me to understand she always had breakfast in her own room.

I had nervous prostration after one woman went away. She told me she had been brought up never to spend an idle moment.

One amiable guest kept fussing with the baby and making trouble for the nurse who took care of it.

Two left without remembering the maid who had waited on them.

Two more disappointed me as to the hours of their trains when they arrived and never even wrote me a line of thanks after the visit when they reached home.

From these and a few other things which I might relate, but won't, it may be seen that it is sometimes the guest who does not know the proper thing to do.

WORK FOR THE WOMEN

What They Can Do to Improve Their Home Town.

MAKE IT DECENT TO LIVE IN

How a Michigan Woman is Trying to Redeem a Community—The Value of Recreation Centers—A Striking Instance.

In Irondale, Mich., a town in the Calumet region, lives a woman who is devoting her life to helping the people, writes Martha Bensley in the Delator for November. But Dr. Harriet Mitchell thinks that the right way to help the people is not to give them food or clothes or medicine only, but to make these things unnecessary. This town of 2,700 people, crowded into four or five streets on the edge of a swamp, has no drainage system because the fall of the water is so slight between it and Lake Michigan.

I went with Dr. Mitchell to visit some sick children. "Look out of the back window," she said while she examined a little Polish girl, "and you will see what is the matter with her."

Back of the house a small space had been hardened with trampled ashes and refuse, making an island in the surrounding sea of black mud—fertile mud in which the germ waxed fat and multiplied. At one side was a pond almost indistinguishable from the earth beneath its covering of glistening green slime. And for such unattractive germs as cared neither for the mud nor the slime there was a pile of festering garbage. Here a dozen children poked with sticks at a bed spring half submerged in the ooze.

Dr. Mitchell groaned as she looked out.

"What can be done," said she, "with no other places for children to play than yards like these? The only wonder is that any live to grow up!"

Dr. Mitchell has persuaded the different landlords that it is cheaper for them to conform to the rules on surface drainage and the disposal of refuse than to stand a prosecution, but her chief efforts have been bent toward taking the children out of the streets. She has helped to persuade the board of South park commissioners to put in a recreation center which will contain in addition to its park space a field house and gymnasium, baths and a swimming pool, athletic apparatus, reading rooms and a lecture hall.

What that recreation hall will mean for the women of Irondale I saw when I went with Dr. Mitchell to ask Andrea Carmina to let her wife come to the sewing class, which for the present was to be held in the hall over McCarthy's saloon. The Italian woman was eager to come, but her husband objected.

"Something hurta da child—mya wife? Gona? No! Wherea mya wife learna sew? Da place at McCarthy's saloon? No gooda place for woman! My wife nota go—no!" And he could not be moved.

"And he's right," Dr. Mitchell said as we came away. "The hall over McCarthy's is no place for a woman. Now, in the recreation center there will be a decent place for the children to play, attendants to see that they are not hurt and a respectable hall where Mrs. Carmina and her friends can sew."

If this recreation center does for Irondale what similar centers have done for parts of Chicago, Dr. Mitchell will have helped to a permanent improvement of her town. The people will be cleaner because of the public baths, stronger because of the gymnasium and the outdoor games, wiser through the use of the reading rooms and the public lectures.

What can a woman do for her town? Make it a decent place to live in! If its people are dying from fever, she can look into the water supply, find out how the refuse is disposed of and make a report to the selectmen or the board of health. This is more helpful than laying out dead babies. If the boys and girls are turning out badly, she can visit the schools and find out what is wrong. She can see if the compulsory education laws are enforced and if the children who must come up before the court are wisely treated. If factory conditions are bad, she can at least learn whether they are within the law or not.

The town where philanthropy is needed is a reproach to every woman in it. The charity turkey and the rummage sale are accusations. It is no longer enough that a woman shall mean well—she must know. And unless she leaves her town permanently better than she found it her good work has altogether failed.

Street Trees and Sewers.

We occasionally hear of some town or small city being violently agitated through finding that roots of street trees are entering the sewers and filling them up. Such discoveries only bring to light some very poorly planned sewers, says the Los Angeles Times. Properly constructed sewers are just as immune from damage by tree roots as a riveted brick. If this were not so we should hear of plenty of trouble from the hundreds of thousands of street trees throughout southern California. The few cases of damage by tree roots record the number of bad leaks in our town sewers. There is nothing especially attractive for roots about sewers except a liberal leak, and if this exists the roots of all plants and trees will head that way at once. If no defective roots will avoid a sewer pipe as quickly as they will a stone or other hard and impermeable substance.

FUNERAL CAR

Purchased by Firm of Criss Bros. & Jones is a Very Handsome One.

Criss Bros. & Jones, the well known undertaking firm, located at 32 South Third street, whose fame as one of the finest establishments in this part of the state, is well known, is still adding to its now complete line of equipages.

With the view in sight that the best is none too good they have just purchased of the Cadillac Coach and Hearse Co., Ravenna, O., a genuine French silver gray funeral car trimmed in gold leaf. This car is not a blue or stone gray, the same as many others that have been seen, but is a regular silver gray. It is a paneled car, the panels being heavily carved with rose buds, and the interior is beautifully draped with broadcloth, silk fringe and rich tassels.

Another attractive feature of the new vehicle is that, with it can be used handsome emblems of any or all the orders and fraternities that the deceased embraced in life. These emblems are not of a flashy design, but are neat in appearance and harmonize with the general color effect of the car, and while noticeable in the cortege they do not offend the eye with any incongruity with the occasion on which it is used.

In speaking of this car the firm from which it was purchased states: "We think your car is one of the handsomest we have ever turned out."

The addition of this new car makes an absolutely complete equipment and one that few firms in Central Ohio can equal, and none can excel.

With regard to ambulance service all calls are responded to with promptness, and in emergency calls or removing the sick the firm is so well known that it needs no comment. This excellent service is made possible by the regular fire department "quick hitch," fast horses and a careful driver. This ambulance is subject to five day or night service to any part of the city.

Since coming to the city in 1891 the Criss Brothers have been noted for their uniform promptness in service, and their courtesy and careful manner in conducting funerals have won for them the place of the leading firm in the city.

Their conduct of funerals could not be otherwise than perfect with the following complete line of equipages: A floral wagon, pall bearers' coach, a minister's conveyance, two black funeral cars, and lastly the beautiful car of silver gray.

CLINGS FOR LIFE TO A LIVE WIRE

And is Saved by Heroic Brother's Efforts in Plain View of Hundreds.

Charles Swickard a Lineman, Receives Terrific Shock While Suspended Above the Street—Hand Badly Burned But the Man Will Recover.

Lying helpless across the cross arms of a telephone pole, 20 feet in the air, with his left hand grasping a live electric light wire, 2,200 volts shooting through his body, and fire flashing from his arm, and this in the presence of three or four hundred spectators, was the horrible experience of Charles Swickard, a Central Union telephone lineman, at an early hour Wednesday morning.

Charles is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emory Swickard of Westerville, O., and only came to the city Monday to accept a position with the telephone company, his brother, Lovell, having been in the employ of the local company for the past three months.

Wednesday morning at about 7:30 the brothers were engaged in stringing wire on Wilson street and Charles was on a pole at the corner of Wilson and Fifth streets. Lovell, who was on the ground, informed him that the first wire on the cross-arm on which he was sitting was a dead wire. Lovell called to him to throw the hand line to him, when he saw his brother fall across the wires, and flames began shooting from the body. Realizing that his brother had grasped a live wire, Lovell climbed the pole, and throwing his arms over the shoulders of the unfortunate boy, gave a quick jerk upon his coat sleeves and loosened his hold on the wire.

Meanwhile several hundred spectators had gathered and a phone message brought the patrol wagon with Wagonman Cooper and Officer Brown to the scene. Someone had also sent in a call to the Central fire department, and they arrived upon the scene shortly afterwards.

After Lovell had loosened his brother's hold on the wire, he was compelled to hold him nearly 15 minutes until a ladder could be procured to lower him to the ground. He was black in the face and was limp and almost lifeless. His left hand was burned nearly through to the bone and the flesh was hanging in strips from the thumb. The arm also was scorched and one of the eyes was blinded where he had been struck when falling across the wires. When rescued his glove was on fire and his brother pulled it from his hand.

Chief Inspector Stouffer of the Central Union had been called to the scene, and assisted in lowering Charles to the ground. A ladder having been procured somewhere in the neighborhood, he was taken in the patrol wagon to the Newark Sanitarium, and his injuries were dressed by Dr. W. E. Wright, and it is thought the young man may be able to leave for home in a couple of days. He will hardly be able to use his hand again this winter.

The escape of Mr. Swickard with his life is most remarkable, considering the fact that 2,200 volts of electricity kept shooting through his body for the space of several minutes or until his hand was jerked loose from the wire. The heavy glove which he had on his hand evidently saved his life. It was one of those rare instances where the power of resistance of the human body against electric currents was very strong.

It was a thrilling and at the same time a horrifying sight to the spectators to see the young man in mid-air, with the flames shooting from his body, and caused many a shudder. Numbers of people who had been attracted to the scene turned away, being unable to gaze upon the sight. What made it appear all the worse was the fact that they were unable to render any assistance and had to stand spell-bound until the unfortunate young man was lowered to the ground by his brother Lovell and Inspector Stouffer.

An Advocate representative called upon Charles at the Sanitarium and found him resting comfortably after his terrible experience. He was still nervous from the ordeal and stated that he was indeed thankful for his marvelous escape from death.

"HONEST JOHN"

HE WAS CALLED, BUT NOW HE HAS LEFT BEHIND ALLEGED SHORTAGE.

Woman Horse Thief Was "So Nice" She Was Given Km of Jail Yard—She's Gone.

Portsmouth, O., Dec. 15.—Considerable of a sensation was created here Tuesday when it became known that John W. Byron, an insurance man, who was elected justice of the peace in the recent Democratic landslide, had disappeared over a week ago, and that absolutely no clew exists as to his whereabouts. Coupled with this news was the report that he is alleged to be short in his accounts with the Pennsylvania Casualty company to the amount of $500. A representative of the company has already found this much of a discrepancy, it is claimed, which represents Byron's collections of the past two months. Byron has always had the confidence of everyone, and was regarded as a shrewd business man. He is of middle age and married, and has held several positions of trust here. He was not known to have any bad habits.

Byron made a real race for justice over an opponent with many years' experience. He was elected by 300 votes after a campaign in which his reputed integrity caused him to be continually referred to by the sobriquet of "Honest John."

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 18.—Mrs. Nellie James, 25, a native of Huntington, Ind., held for horse stealing, escaped from the county jail at Jerseyville, Ill., in boy's clothing. She was a trusty. Although Sheriff Snell and Jailor Shortell notified all surrounding towns she eluded pursuit.

Mrs. James was arrested October 12 at Alton in company with Guy James, who later declared he was an evangelist. Both were bound over to the March grand jury on a charge of stealing a horse from John Carroll, a farmer living near Fidelity, Ill. The pair were located in a hotel and the horse was found in an Allen livery stable.

Mrs. James said she had been educated in a convent, from which she escaped, and had afterward married Guy James. In her possession was found a Bible, while in her waist she had a revolver concealed and in her stockings two combs were hidden.

Mrs. James seemed so nice she was given unusual liberties, including access to the jailer's home.

HUNGRY AS A BEAR AND CAN'T EAT

If, When Mealtime Comes, You Suffer From a Yes-Not Kind of Hunger You're a Dyspeptic.

How to Cure All Stomach Troubles.

A good many people get mad when you tell them they've got dyspepsia, but way down deep in their stomachs they know they've got it.

"I'd love to eat it, but I can't," is one kind of dyspepsia. "I hate to think of it," is another kind. There are thousands of people today who hate their meals, and love them at the same time. They haven't that fine empty-hungry eat-everything-in-sight kind of feeling which goes with every good strong healthy stomach. That's because they have dyspepsia. And then there are others whose mouths don't water at meal time or at any other time. They sit at the table and go through the motions, only because it's time to eat. These people, too, are dyspeptics.

Every possible kind of stomach trouble can be cured by taking something which will just take right hold of all the food in your stomach and digest it alone without the help of the stomach, and let the stomach take a rest.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do this very thing. They are composed of the best digestive known to science, and are absolutely safe. One ingredient alone of one of these tablets will digest 3,000 grains of food! These tablets do exactly the work that a good strong healthy stomach does.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets cure all cases of dyspepsia, indigestion, burning or irritation, loss of appetite, bloating, brash, belching, aversion to food, fermentation and gas on the stomach.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will make you feel "good" before and after each meal, and make your stomach strong and healthy again. They will make you happy.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package, free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold at every drug store for 50c a box.

MRS. TAFT'S WILL

Filed For Probate and Secretary Taft is Named as One of the Executors.

Cincinnati, Dec. 18.—The will of Mrs. Louise M. Taft, widow of Alphonso Taft, was filed for probate on Tuesday afternoon, with Charles P. Taft and William H. Taft, secretary of war, named as executors. To Wm. H. Henry W. Horace D. and Frances Louise Edwards is left the Cincinnati realty, or, if sold, $25,000 each; to Louise T. Burton Caldwell, $10,000; to Samuel Torrey Orton, $500; to Adolph Richter, $500; to Hulbert Taft, $250; to Charles P. Taft, the marble bust of his father, done in 1869 by Hiram Powers. The balance of the estate is left to the daughter, Frances Louise Edwards. In a codicil dated July 27, 1907, Mrs. Taft leaves $500 each to two nephews, William F. and Samuel A. Wood, and $100 each to four cousins, Caroline Torrey Martin, Isabelle H. Waters, Lillian Waters Grosvenor and Florence Eve Phillips.

MISSOURI IS FOR TAFT

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 18.—The Republican state committee Tuesday afternoon voted to hold in St. Louis February 27 the convention for the selection of delegates to the national convention and for the nomination of presidential electors.

The committee also, following the suggestion of Chairman Dickey and the motion of John H. Bothwell, endorsed Secretary Taft for the presidential nomination.

There were only a few negative votes heard and no opposition to the later motion to make the vote unanimous.

A letter from Secretary Taft's campaign manager turned the tide for an early convention, the opposition having favored a later date than the one selected.

PRICE OF GAS LOWER IN ZANESVILLE.

Zanesville, Dec. 18.—Notice has been sent out to the manufacturers of the city by the Ohio Fuel Supply company that after January 1 the price of gas will be reduced from 14 cents a thousand to 15. The fact that the company has struck several valuable wells lately and therefore has a better supply of gas is given as the cause of the reduction. The new order will be in effect until October 1, 1908, when the manufacturers' contracts expire.

AGE LIMIT OF VETERANS IS NINE YEARS

Columbus, Dec. 18.—In his annual report filed with Governor Harris Tuesday, Colonel W. L. Curry, state commissioner of soldiers' claims computes the life expectancy of the average surviving soldier of the Civil war at nine years. While of course, surviving soldiers of that war will be in evidence for many years after that, the great bulk of them will have passed their reward at the end of that time.

During the year he filed for the soldiers 4,591 claims, and secured the allowance of 1,787. In addition he secured 188 widows' claims and nine guardians claims. The claims allowed represent an annual total pension payment of $214,171.44, practically all of which is spent in this state. One of the claims allowed was for $160 a month, two for $77, one for $55, five for $50 and 20 for $30. The rest are small. The federal pension roll was reduced last year by death to the extent of $15,758. However, there was an increase of the widows' claims. On the Ohio agency pension rolls there are now 41 pensions paid on account of the War of 1812 all widows, and 296 on account of the Mexican war, 251 of which are paid to widows.

SAW A VISION OF THE FLAMES

And While in the Act of Getting Additional Insurance His Hotel Burned.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 18.—C. McGriff, lessee and manager of the Albemarle hotel, who several nights ago saw a vision of his hotel in flames, was Tuesday in the act of having a policy for additional insurance signed when fire broke out and the building was partially destroyed. Officers of the Virginia Fire Insurance company with which company the insurance was placed, said last night that the policy was in full force and would be paid.

Twenty-five guests were in the hotel at the time. A Mrs. Miller and her baby barely escaped from the burning portion of the building with their lives.

LORD KELVIN

Famous Scientist, is Dead and All the Scientific Bodies of Europe Will Mourn Him.

Glasgow, Dec. 18.—Lord Kelvin, one of the foremost scientists of the Victorian era, died at his home Tuesday at the age of 83. He had been suffering from heart trouble, superinduced by old age, and last week he was stricken with a relapse, from which the physicians announced he could not recover.

The leading scientific bodies of Great Britain will take cognizance of his death, and it is expected that many notables will attend his funeral.

William Thompson, first Lord Kelvin, was born in Belfast, Ireland, June 26, 1824. He was knighted in 1866 and was created Baron Kelvin in 1892. For his efforts in behalf of science, Lord Kelvin has been decorated many times.

In 1902 Lord Kelvin, accompanied by Lady Kelvin, made a visit to the United States. At that time he was deeply interested in wireless telegraphy and aerodynamics. Of the former he said: "Wireless telegraphy is one of the world's most remarkable inventions. I believe most sincerely that the day will come when it will prove a great commercial value."

Perhaps the most marvelous thing about Lord Kelvin was his tireless activity. He began doing great things almost as a boy, and he was still at it almost up to the day of his death.

"Suffered day and night the torment of itching piles. Nothing helped me until I used Doan's Ointment. It cured me permanently."—Hon. John R. Garrett, Mayor, Grand, Ala.

STRUGGLED

Against Physicians' Efforts to Administer Antidotes After He Had Taken Strychnine.

Cincinnati, Dec. 18.—Struggling as long as strength lasted to interfere with the efforts made by a physician to administer antidotes, W. A. Edridge, a Columbus traveling agent, succeeded in his attempt to commit suicide by swallowing strychnine at 10:30 p.m. Tuesday evening.

Edridge represented the West Publishing company of Minneapolis, Minn., and has headquarters at Columbus.

Edridge was about 50 years of age and seemed in jovial spirits when he returned to the hotel late in the afternoon. About 5 o'clock he called up the clerk over the house phone, and calmly told him that he had taken poison. His voice was so steady that the clerk thought Edridge was trying to perpetrate a joke.

He had swallowed such a large dose of poison that nothing could be done for him. The wrappings on the package of strychnine showed that it was purchased in Baltimore, Md.

COSHOCKTON PAPERS CLAIM IT IS PROPOSED TO TAKE BEN DICKERSON CASE.

They Say That Millersburg is Most Inaccessible Point in District and Suggest Newark.

The motion for a change of venue for the second trial of Ben Dickerson together with lengthy affidavits to support their contentions was filed by Attorneys J. C. Adams and J. C. Sweeney in Common Pleas court Monday.

Because the newspapers of Coshocton gave full and true accounts of the events in the case just as they happened the defendant's attorneys claim there is too much prejudice in this county for the second trial to be held here on Tuesday, January 14. The motion will be decided here by Judge Wickham of Delaware, next Saturday.

There is a storm brewing over the change of venue of the Ben Dickerson case and the alleged fact that a strong pull is being made to send the case to Millersburg to be tried.

A business man had a stormy interview with attorneys in the case Monday morning, declaring it to be an outrage to think of taking the case out of the county; that it would cost the county about $4,000 more to take it away than to try him here; that the county had already paid for a fair trial for Dickerson and would give him another fair one here; and that it was only a whim anyhow.

There was a conference held at the Elks' club Sunday afternoon between Judge Nicholas, Attorneys McDowell, Glenn, Wheeler and Adams. What it was for and what the outcome was is not known, but it is known that for some time the attorneys in the case have not been in favor of Millersburg. Monday they seemed to be. It is further stated that after all Judge Voorhees may be lined up with the defense when the case comes to trial.

Judge Wickham, who is to hear the case, will be here Saturday.

It has not yet been made definitely clear that there should be a change of venue. If there must be it is the duty of the officials of this county, if possible to see to it that it is made the least expensive possible to the taxpayers. If the case is taken to Millersburg it means that witnesses going from this city, and county, will arrive there about 2:30 p. m. of one day and will have to remain there until the next day before they can get a train for home. That means they will have to be paid for two whole days besides a long railway haul. Millersburg is the most inaccessible place in the district for the trial. More than that at the time of the trial in this county, Millersburg papers published all they could clip from the local papers regarding the case. There was as much known in Holmes county as in any other surrounding county. If it must be taken some place else, in the name of common sense take it some place that is accessible.

Newark, Zanesville, New Philadelphia strikes us to be the height of folly to take the case to Holmes county, where just about double the expense to the taxpayers of Coshocton county will be entailed.

Former Fire Chief Who Killed Wife's Alleged Paramour Guilty of Manslaughter.

Lebanon, O., Dec. 18.—The jury in the case of William Miller, formerly chief of the fire department of Franklin, charged with the murder of Joseph Little, his wife's alleged paramour, returned a verdict Tuesday afternoon of manslaughter.

Several months ago, according to the testimony, Miller's wife and child suddenly disappeared from their home in Franklin. Miller traced them to Springfield and discovered that she had been accompanied there by Little.

The latter was arrested and taken to the jail in Franklin, when adjoints of the police department of Springfield, Miller at that time was head of the fire department.

He secured keys to the jail, and with a shotgun, killed Little, who was incarcerated in a cell. After the crime Miller appeared to be a raving maniac. He was indicted for murder in the first degree.

FAUST.

White's "Faust" attracted a large Monday matinee audience to the opera house yesterday afternoon. In the evening there was not a vacant seat in the theater. Scenically, it is a splendid production and the pathetic story it tells is one of which the public seems never to tire. It is a fairy tale of childhood days. Lovers of the bucolic drama will no doubt turn out in large numbers on Monday, December 30, their destination being the Auditorium, where Wm. A. Brady's production of the perennial wonder "Way Down East" will be the attraction. The same big cast and production seen here in seasons past will again take us back to childhood days away back yonder, and the snow storm which is the big scenic feature of the play, will of course cause a few chills to run down the spinal column when poor Anna Moore is turned from Spruce Bartlett's house. Phoebe Davies still heads the cast.

WHY THE DRUMMER QUIT.

Incidentally a Large New Building Helps to Explain It.

"I passed through St. Louis a few weeks ago," remarked the retired commercial traveler, "and there I saw a sight which in a measure explains why I have had to go into another line of work at my age because my sales to country customers fell off. It made me a little mad when I saw it too. But, then, what's the use?"

The ex-drummer took a puff at his pipe and blew the smoke upward, while the others in the group wondered what it possibly could be in St. Louis that had put him out of business on the road.

"Yes, it made me a little mad," continued the old roadster; "but, then, I forgot my own injury in contemplating the sorrows—I may say the follies—of others, of the very people who used to buy the goods that I sold to the stores throughout my territory."

"What was it you saw in St. Louis?" ventured one curious listener.

"Oh, as to that, it was just a building, just a big brick building—that is, it was brick on the outside—but strung clear along one outer wall a whole block was a huge canvas sign reading, 'The Largest Monolithic Structure in the World.' Monolithic, you know, in that sense means poured concrete or what the architects call re-enforced concrete. The inside walls, floors and supporting pillars are all of concrete, the material being poured soft into frames of wood and then allowed to set. Thus the whole structure is practically in one piece and as solid as eternity or the south in national elections. The owners of this particular building no doubt are entitled to take pride in the fact that it is the biggest of its kind on the globe. It is a monstrous structure, occupying an entire city block. It is one of the very biggest buildings I ever saw. The structure rises to the height of ten or twelve stories, I should say, and is a beautiful piece of architecture."

"But what's it for," asked a perplexed hearer, "and how does it happen to interfere with your former line of work?"

"Well, just this way," the ex-drummer responded, but he paused to puff his pipe a little more. "I used to smoke fifteen cent cigars," he went on, switching off the track apparently. "Yes, I smoked fifteen centers in the good old days—the days before the flood."

"Didn't know you autedated Noah," facetiously remarked a man in the group.

"By the flood," said the retired drummer. "I mean the flood of advertising matter sent out from the city to the country to catch country cash and carry it to the city. In other words, I mean this new development of late years, the mail order business. That big building I mentioned is simply a mail order store just completed. Less than ten years ago the firm that has built it was doing business in a cheap

John Little building on a side street. This firm had nerve enough to advertise for mail order business, and the people in small towns and the farming communities took the bait. This new store, the biggest monolithic structure on earth, is the result. The people from rural communities built it for this firm I mention—every brick, every bucket of concrete, every slab of marble in the wainscoting. They built it with money which they took out of circulation around home. Of course not one in a million of them will ever see this beautiful monolithic mail order mansion, but that's immaterial. If country people can't get to the big cities themselves or don't care to go, they send their money there to represent them. See?"

"We see the point," agreed the others.

"Then you know now why I'm no longer on the road."

The City of Maples.

The stranger in Macon, Mo., invariably notes the large number of insignificant shade trees that border the streets of the town, says the Kansas City Star. The place has come to be known as "the City of Maples," and the inhabitants take pleasure in telling of how these fine trees were acquired. In 1872 John W. Beannont, a real estate man, "went broke" and could not pay his taxes, which amounted to $110. He offered the city council in lieu of the cash 10,000 young maple trees from one to two inches in diameter, all ready to set out. It was that or nothing, so the council took the trees. By public proclamation the mayor fixed an "arbor day," and everybody who would agree to set them out and care for them received from six to ten trees. At that time the town was almost bare of trees of every kind. Almost in a day Mr. Beannont's legal tender for taxes was in the hands of the inhabitants, and they so faithfully carried out the mayor's injunction that today there is hardly a street in town which is not beautifully shaded by thick leaved trees, suggesting a town in the tropics.

The Whittlers.

See that new building going up? And see the whittlers sitting down. Like flies around a custard cup? 'Tis always thus in this old town.

A few are building houses. They are enterprising, but the rest they sit around the work all day and scatter shavings east and west.

Some men are workers, some are drones. That never earn their bread and victuals. Now, Smith, he's on the job, but Jones, he spits tobacco juice and whittles.

We want to see the town advance—It's here we have to spend our lives, And maybe we'd improve the chance By confiscating pocketknives.

There's no use trying to increase Our town's importance while the chaps By scores are wasting elbow grease In whittling up the builders' scraps. —T. Sapp, Jr.

FEDERAL TAXATION.

There is a real peril in the tendency of the states and the people thereof to saddle upon the federal government expensive jobs. They do it on the comfortable theory that the federal government gets its money easily, perhaps even that it collects it from the foreigner who trades with us. Money that is gotten so easy, in imagination, flows out again freely. When we once grasp the idea that every dollar spent by the government is raised as truly by taxation as though it were spread upon an assessment roll, perhaps we shall have more sympathy with the efforts of the chairman of the appropriations committee to avoid useless or doubtful experiments in government. —Houghton, Mich. Gazette.

BOWSER'S HEALTH FAD

Returns to Habits of His Ancestors and Plans Simple Life.

DROPS IT AFTER ONE DAY.

Eats Vegetables and Meat Raw and Sleeps Outdoors Until Drenched With Rain—Comes Home Mad, but Conceals Feelings.

[Copyright, 1907, by Homer Sprague.]

"I have got your favorite dish for dinner this evening—Maryland chicken and corn fritters," announced Mrs. Bowser when Mr. Bowser reached home from the office the other evening.

He had a package under his arm, and, laying it down and hanging up his hat, he replied:

"Thanks, but I am sorry you put yourself out. No Maryland chicken for me."

"Don't you feel well?"

"I am in the best of health, and I propose to remain so. I will take a seat at the table, but shall choose my own food. It is here in this package."

"Then—then you've got another fad," she said as they went down to the dining room.

"No, ma'am, I haven't. I never have a fad. There is no man in the country more clear of them. I have simply decided to take care of my health hereafter and live to be a hundred years old."

Parasnis and Onions.

And he opened his package and brought out three onions and two parasnis and proceeded to make them ready for eating. As Mrs. Bowser watched him he said:

"Only about thirty men out of every hundred live to reach the age of sixty."

HE THOUGHT OF CODFISH BALLS.

Only twenty-eight out of every hundred children born reach the age of twenty. There are not ten healthy women in a hundred. We are fast becoming a weak and feeble people, not only in this country, but all over the civilized world."

"And the cause of it is eating Maryland chicken and corn fritters?" sarcastically queried Mrs. Bowser.

"To some extent, yes. The cause is that we eat too much. We run too much to taffy. We eat too much, and we coddle ourselves too much. We have entirely lost track of the way our ancestors lived. Two thousand years ago a case of indigestion was unknown. Colds and coughs were unknown. No one heard of gastritis or catarrh. There were no doctors and no drug stores. Now how is it? This faddish way of living has sapped the manhood of the world, and the end is not yet."

"And you are going to make a change?"

"I am. I have already made one. I had a raw potato and four glasses of water for my lunch this noon. I shall eat an onion and a parsnip and drink three glasses of water for my dinner. I have felt better this afternoon than for months before. Mrs. Bowser, I am going back five or six thousand years and live as our ancestors lived."

"But we have no tree in the back yard for you to climb into and make your bed at night," she protested.

To Sleep on the Grass.

"Our ancestors slept in trees or on the ground, just as suited them best. I shall make my bed on the grass. We know that the dew of heaven is a greater remedy than any yet invented by man. I have now made my dinner. What I have eaten nature intended for me to eat. It will make me strong. It will give me new life. It will clear away these pains and aches. You may still continue this faddish way of living, but no more of it for me."

Mrs. Bowser sighed. She knew that it was useless to argue with him when he got hold of a new idea. He must work it out before he would let go of it. When they went up to the sitting room he did not make a dive for a cigar, as was his usual wont. He saw her looking at him with elevated eyebrows, and he explained:

"Our ancestors did not smoke tobacco. Instinct taught them that it was vicious and weakening. It is responsible for thousands of deaths every year. No more cigars for me. I shall chew sassafras root instead."

"How did you happen to make this change?" she asked.

"I was talking with Professor Swift, who happened to drop into the office."

He said that a man with a frame like mine ought to live a hundred years."

"And then he wanted to borrow $5, didn't he?"

Defends Professor Swift.

"Woman, can't I broach a single subject to you but what you try to be sarcastic over it?" shouted Mr. Bowser as his face got very red. "Of course he didn't want to borrow any money. He was simply interested from a professional standpoint."

"And he knows as much about it as our old cat. Every day or two you see an article in the papers about what to eat and how to eat it and when and how long to sleep and a lot of other nonsense. One doctor says we must chew our meat very fine. Another says to bolt it down in lumps. One says look out for sweets, and another says eat half a pound of candy per day. One says that white bread contains no nutriment, and another declares it the very germ of wheat. When have they experimented, on whom? One doctor says that mashed potatoes are unwholesome. Another says they should be prepared for the table in no other way. You have lived for almost fifty years in this faddish way, as you call it, and I don't see how your health could be any better. You are as strong as an ox, and if you would only let these fads alone you might live to be 300 years old instead of 100. What makes you let men stuff you with such ideas?"

Mr. Bowser had kept his eyes on her as she spoke. His face had flushed from red to white and back again half a dozen times.

"Stuff me! Stuff Bowser!" he almost yelled when she had finished. "Mrs. Bowser, the man does not live who can stuff me. He never has lived and never will. To hear you talk, one would think I was a six-year-old kid who didn't know enough to get out of the way of a street car. Discussion is useless, however. You are never in sympathy with any of my ideas. I will go my way about this matter, and you can go yours. Stuff me! Stuff me!"

Resents Her Sarcasm.

That ended it. Mr. Bowser was dying for a smoke, but he couldn't go back on his ancestors. When they hankered for anything they went out and dug roots. After he had wandered to and fro and up and down for an hour he went over to the drug store and asked for some licorice root.

"What's up now?" queried the druggist.

"I've stopped smoking."

"Glad to hear it. I've thought for the last year that your brain is more or less affected."

If there hadn't been a couple of ladies in the store Mr. Bowser would have called the druggist a liar. As it was, he had to bottle up his wrath. He hadn't gone ten feet from the door when he met his family butcher and halted him to say:

"Smith, didn't the ancients used to eat their meat raw before they found a way to cook it?"

"I guess they did."

"And wasn't that why they were so strong and healthy?"

"I presume it was. Shall I send you over a neck piece from an old bull to chew on? After devouring it you may be able to pull up a telegraph pole."

Conceals His Feelings.

Mr. Bowser got home mad, but he concealed his feelings from Mrs. Bowser and chewed away at his supply of root. When 10 o'clock came he went upstairs and took a quilt off his bed and passed out into the back yard without a word to her. The dewy grass awaited him, but there were cats around and the night was dark as he felt himself wishing that his ancestors had slept on hair mattresses. As he lay down and stretched out and the dew of heaven glistened on his bald pate his vitals yearned for fried Maryland chicken and corn fritters. He thought of coffee and chocolate. He knew that his ancestors had none of those things, and he began to have a contempt for them.

The professor hadn't asked to borrow $5 of him, and he had told Mrs. Bowser no lie. It was ten that the man got, and the lender now wished he had it back. Mr. Bowser had about made up his mind to change back and eat a hearty breakfast in the morning when he fell asleep. He didn't get to sleep as soon as one of his ancestors would have done, but he did well for the first time. He had slept and dreamed and hungered and hankered for an hour when there was a flash of lightning, a peal of thunder, and the rain descended in a perfect cloudburst. Three minutes later a limp and bedraggled form entered the family bedroom, where Mrs. Bowser sat reading and waiting.

"Our ancestors laid out in the rain and got soaked, and that toughened them," she remarked.

"D—n our ancestors!" was his vigorous reply as he began to peel off his wet garments to get into bed.

ERYSIPELAS CURED

By a Wonderful Remedy

Erysipelas is recognized by the medical profession as a most dangerous and loathsome disease; one which baffles their skill and has been pronounced contagious to a marked degree. The following letter describes a remarkable cure recently made by the PALMER "SUCCESS" SYSTEM OF TREATMENT:

"I take pleasure in testifying to the wonderful workings of the 'SKIN-SUCCESS' Remedies. I had a red sore in the corner of my mouth, and in saving it, it was in a week's time it spread until it covered my face with a mass of excruciating pain. The doctor said I had erysipelas, gave me a solution to apply and a plaster to wear. I nearly went out of my mind with the pain in my face. An old friend of the family advised me to try the Palmer Treatment. I immediately purchased these remedies at the drug store and am very glad to say they promptly and permanently cured me. These remedies certainly are wonderful, and I fully recommend them to John W. Walsh, 17 South Lane, Cambridge, Pa."

Such commendation is, indeed, something of which to be proud. This splendid system of treatment, supplying all the essentials of purification, are a complete cure for Eczema, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Acne, Pimples, Ringworm, Blackheads, Itching affections, Itch and Oak Poisoning, Furigo, Psoriasis, Piles, Constipation and all Blood and Skin Disorders.

Prize For Town Beautifying Essay.

Various methods are adopted for encouraging improvement work in towns and villages. One of these is the offering of prizes. At a recent essay contest held in Greenville, S. C., prizes were offered by the Municipal League of Greenville for the best essay dealing with the beautifying of that flourishing South Carolina city, and there were a large number of contestants, says the Charlottesville (Va.) Progress. The first prize was won by John Wood, an Albemarle (Va.) boy and formerly editor of the Roanoke Times. Mr. Wood was awarded $50. He is the secretary of the Greenville board of trade.

The Secret Hiding Place.

"I've found it!" cried Daisy Dale in great excitement, rapping on the wooden wall behind the shelves in the cupboard. "Hear how hollow it sounds, and see how it rattles!"

"Yes, indeed, this is it," said Jennie. "Let's get it open."

That was easier to say than to do, but at last, after a great deal of pushing, the lower half of the wall, swinging slowly inward, proved to be a door. The two girls looked eagerly into the gloomy recess beyond and hesitated.

The square stone house had been built long ago by Daisy's great-grandfather. It had a big chimney right in the center. There were four rooms on the ground floor, and in each room a fireplace was built across a corner in the middle of the house, so that between the backs of the four fires there was a good sized space. In the old

The two little girls felt so easy and safe as they lay on the cushions, eating cookies and apples, that they almost wished the redskins would really come. Daisy told her friend all she knew about colonial days and ways and of how her ancestors used to hide in this very place until at last, when the light grew more dim, they began to feel "creepy" and nervous. When, therefore, a knocking sound was heard somewhere in the distance, they drew the shawls over their heads, put their fingers into their ears and kept them there until the noise ceased. After that they did not seem to want any more cookies, but settled themselves for a nap and were soon sound asleep. Jennie awoke first and for a minute did not know where she was. It was a pitch dark night, and away up above her a bright star was twinkling in the sky. Then she roused Daisy, who colonial days this had been used as a hiding place in times of danger. Light and air came in at the top. Yet as the four fires sloped toward each other as they rose very little rain or snow could penetrate.

The entrance was concealed in a narrow cupboard at the side of the dining room fireplace.

Daisy and her friend were alone in the house, for the rest of the family had gone to town, and Maggie, the maid, was out, too, and they had chosen this time to be discoverers.

After a little their curiosity got the better of their fears, and, stooping down, they crept under the lowest shelf of the cupboard and into the secret room. It was a small brick compartment, dimly lighted from above.

"This is just as Great-aunt Jane told me," said Daisy in delight, "when she came to see us in the west. But she did not know how to get into it, and when the old house became ours and we moved east to live in it I made up my mind to find the hiding place. Won't the boys wonder!" The next minute a brilliant idea flashed into the speaker's brain. She whispered to her friend, and then the two ran up to the garret treasure house, opened a hair trunk and took out some quaint costumes.

In a little while there came downstairs Mistress Deborah and Mistress Jennie, as pretty a pair of colonial maidens as the old house had ever held. Clad in long skirts of a large flower pattern stuff, pointed bodices, lace handkerchiefs, caps and mitts, with powder and patches complete, they swept into the parlor hand in hand. "Sister Jennie," said Deborah, "if you will open the splint and discourse some music I will treat you a measure."

Then Jennie played "Long, Long Ago," her only piece, some of it with one hand where she had forgotten the bass.

Mistress Deborah held up her skirt, courted slowly to right and left, turned out her toes, pranced with a grand air, swung round and courted low again, smiled over her shoulder and took more steps, trying hard to keep time to the music, which was rather shaky, as the player kept looking round to admire the dancer.

Suddenly the latter stopped and exclaimed, "What was that?"

"The Wyandottes are on the war-path," cried Jennie, closing the piano hastily. "Let us hide!" And they ran to the secret room, snatching up two dolls as they went.

"We must have food," was the next thought, and in a twinkling all the freshly made cookies and gingerbread, six apples and some molasses candy found their way into the hiding place. A hearth rug, shawls and sofa cushions made the brick floor comfortable; the dolls were told not to make a bit of noise for their lives; then the cupboard door was closed from the inside, the secret door behind the shelves was tightly shut, and the wooden bars were put up to hold it.

must have been dreaming all kinds of things, for she sat up directly and asked:

"What's that?"

At last Jennie heard muffled voices and the sound of people walking about. What could it mean? Indians?

"Don't stir or they will find us," said Jennie in her friend's ear, and, with their arms clasped round each other, the two girls sat in the darkness straining their ears and trembling until suddenly a streak of light on the floor showed that the outer door of the cupboard had been opened and some one said:

"I've looked in here and everywhere before."

Daisy jumped up directly and uttered a soft "Coo-coo."

There was a dead silence for a minute, while Daisy whispered to her friend, "It's Frank," and the two girls stuffed corners of the shawls into their mouths to keep from laughing.

"Coo-coo, Daisy," called her brother at last. "Where are you?"

Then the secret door flew open and out dashed the colonial maidens, flushed and breathless, their caps and kerchiefs all awry, their faces soiled and their eyes blinking in the sudden light.

When they explained matters to the astonished family Daisy's mother said:

"We were anxious about you, for Frank has looked all over the house and inquired of the neighbors. We found Maggie waiting on the steps, for she could not get in. Did you hear her knocking?"

"We heard something," said Daisy, "but we thought it was Wyandottes. Didn't we, Jennie?"

"Yes, indeed," was the reply, "and we were awfully frightened, but we did have lots of fun."—Washington Star.

Gapo and Nidnod and Good Slumberees. Oh, when the night darkens the blue of the sky And bright in their places the stars gleam on high, 'Tis then to the baby come visitors three, Come Gapo and Nidnod and good Slumberees.

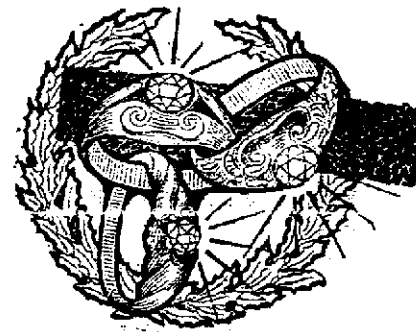

Oh, Gapo glides in with a stretch and a yawn, Though fain would he be wide awake as He gapes and he stretches in spite of himself, And all must gaze with him, the wee drowsy elf!

Now Nidnod approaches, with soft noiseless tread, With down dropping eyelids and niddling head. First this way, then that way, his heavy head goes, For dear little Nidnod is ready to doze.

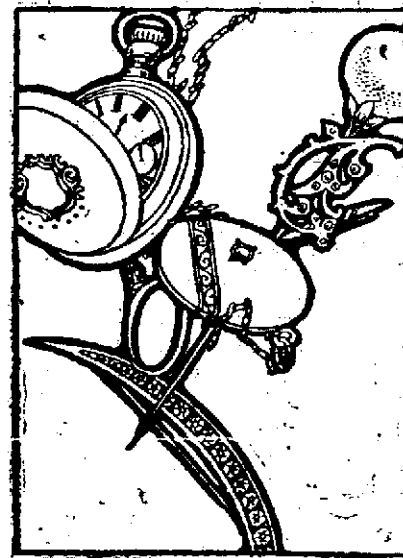

When baby is tucked in his cozy white nest, Good Slumberees comes with a gift of sweet rest— Sweet rest and the gayest of gay little dreams Of laughter and rainbows and toys and sunbeams.

Good Slumberees stays till the night has gone by And till the day brightens the blue of the sky. Then baby wakes laughing, and no thought has he Of Gapo and Nidnod and good Slumberees.—Congregationalist.
